President's Letter

Dear Family,

I hope you had a wonderful summer and fall! Now, we are looking forward to winter activities, football, skiing, Christmas, warmer clothes. I'm sure you are now planning your activities for the coming year.

After talking to various members of the board of WFA, I was reminded of a quote of President Kennedy "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country." You know what WFA can do for you, now ask yourself what can I do for WFA? Our members have many skills that can benefit our family. To be specific, we need a new treasurer to take over the first of January. The person the board seeks does not need to be an accountant, banker or financial advisor, but needs normal computer skills. This is an excellent opportunity for a stay at home parent, or a retired person to contribute to the family. The treasury's position pays the same as all board members receive which is the satisfaction of serving the family. Interested? Call or email me or any member of the board. If you have other interests or skills which you feel would benefit the family, PLEASE let us hear from you. I really like hearing from you and value all contact.

Although we are separated by distance and most of us have not met in person, we are family and I urge you to think of the WFA as family. No matter what your name, no matter which of the spellings represents you or even if your name is Jones, Smith or Gonzales to paraphrase President Kennedy again, each of you can say "ich bin ein Wolfensberger.

God bless you and yours,

Frank

75 Years of Area Boy Scouting!

Shenandoah Area Council Celebrates Its Diamond Jubilee with More Than 6,000 Members

By Karl B. Hille

The Boy Scouts of America was a relatively young import from Great Britain when Scout troops of the Shenandoah region formed their own council in 1928.

The BSA was formed in 1910, and soon troops sprouted in Luray, Martinsburg, W.Va., and Winchester.

"There was Scouting in Winchester as early as 1914," said William Wolfersberger, former Shenandoah Council BSA executive. "But then it was not continuous. And it didn't cover the region."

The council celebrated its diamond jubilee last month.

In 75 years, the council has grown from nine troops and 170 scouts to more than 6,000 Scouts today in 190 troops. They have also become a more outdoor, sport-oriented council, Wolfersberger said.

"We've added a lot in recent years in terms of what you might call high-adventure activities," he said, such as canoe and white water excursions, and annual trips to the Philmont Scout Ranch in Cimarron, N.M.

"The council now includes six counties in northwest Virginia and three in West Virginia. The Shenandoah Area Council performs many behind-the-scene services for the Boy Scout troops and Cub Scout packs within the region," Wolfersberger said.

"The council provides supporting services for individual scout leaders and the churches and organizations that sponsor them," said Bob Ferrell, the current council executive.

They also maintain the Rock Enon Boy Scout Camp in Frederick County, and a records office and scout store at the council office where leaders can purchase uniforms, supplies and badges.

Recently, while organizing archival files, I was able to update the following information. Files from Rudi (Rudolf Wolfensberger, Robert J. Wolfenbarger, Wolf Wolfensberger, Larry Jones, Raymond Bell, and Myrtle Braun, plus original documents with notations provided items that have previously, perhaps, been overlooked in our newsletters. You will find the notes in bold print of special interest since they seem to be "new" in this reporting.

The Wolfensberger families found in the United States of America, originate primarily from "relatives" whose link with the original families of Switzerland was not discernable, but who, however, were definitely descendants of the original families. This break in known pedigree occurred at about 1550 - Jakob Wolfensberger. This database shows two Mr. Wolfensberger's prior to Jakob, and links him to Hans von Wolfensberg. This was a calculated connection made by our founder. We have no specific proof of the connection.

Most of the data in the WFA family database regarding the original Wolfensberger family of Switzerland was obtained from the "DEUTSCH-SCHWEIZERISCHES GESCHLECHTERBUCH" vol 4, and the "DEUTSCHES GESCHLECHTERBUCH" Vol 65, both edited by Dr. jur Bernhard HOERNER as published in 1929, C. A. Starke, Verlag, and the "WOLFENSBERGER FAMILY OF SWITZERLAND" as shown on film 1181673 item 16 pages 1 thru 342 from the L D S Genealogy Library of Salt Lake City, UT, not allowed for interlibrary loan, due to the publisher's copyright restrictions. Only two known original texts that we know of in the USA besides those found in libraries. CD copies now available from the publisher. A translation into English was mentioned in the last newsletter.

In the introductory pages of the text, it is stated that the name Wolfensberger, and its derivatives "came from two 'farms' named Wolfensberg, within the two communities of Baeretswil and Bauma. Knight Baldebrecht de Wolfsberg was buried at the Monastery Rueti, with others of his generation." [translation by Werner Kraus, (1926- ?), of Stuttgart-Weilimdorf, Germany, and of Canada, and of USA in 1959.

!An excerpt from the Introduction of the " WOLFENSBERGER FAMILY OF SWITZERLAND" by Dr. jur Bernhard Hoerner is as follows: (translated by Willard Rolland Wolfinbarger, deceased, and brother of Myrtle Wolfinbarger Braun, also deceased, who was a prominent USA genealogist. This information given to MBL by his niece, prior to her death. The translation was abbreviated by L.M. Jones:)

!"The numerous and scattered WOLFENSBERGER family has derived its name from the settlement Wolfesberg or Ober Wolfsberg near Bauma and Baeretswil in Switzerland. These communities are about 25 km at 95 degrees from Zurich. Many of the family migrated to the town of Wetzikon and the village of Ettenhausen. Wetzikon is about 10 km southwest of Bauma and Ettenhausen is very near to Wetzikon. The word Wolfesberg means "Mount of the Wolf" (or she wolf). Some of the earliest written forms of the name are WOLFENSPERGER or WOLFENSBERGER. This later took on many different spellings (20 plus variations).

!The Castle Wolfsberg stood on a steep hill at the village Ober Wolfsberg which is near Bauma and Baeretswil. This castle is listed in the "Zurich Book of Castles" and was the home of the Noble Knight of the same name, Knight Baldebert [=shortened and Americanized version of his title] [The original spelling: " Knight BALDEBRECHT de WOLFSBERG" from 1233 to 1259. He was from Rapperswil and a subject of Griefenberg, a possession of the Counts of Rapperswil, who held feudal tenure from St. Gallen. Knight BALDEBRECHT de Wolfsberg and probably others of his family endowed the Monastery at Ruti. The family Coat of Arms was held in this Monastery and many of the family now there lay buried. The use of "von" or "de" as part of the Surname, indicated "Aristocracy", and should always be included as the entire surname: i.e., de Wolfsberg, would be the correct Surname/last name, as is von Wolfensberg, for the Surname of Herman von Wolfensberg. [research by Rudi Wolfensberger]

!(This Knight BALDEBRECHT, seems to have been the beginning of the WOLFENSBERGER family. Knight BALDEBRECHT may have received his Knighthood from leading a group on one of the Crusades to the Holy Land.) LMJones

QUERIES.....

Hi,

I am researching the family Wolfenbarger because my great grandmother was Lorinda Jane Wolfenbarger. She was married to Havey Benjamin Robertson. I never met them and am very interested in my family line. I never knew any relatives growing up. My parents were only children and I never had any aunts or uncles on parents side.

I have now met one of their sons, Charles Marion Robertson, my grandfather's daughter by second marriage and have been writing another cousin which is related to two different sisters of Charles. We are all interested in Lorinda Jane Wolfenbarger's family and to see what she looked like. Would appreciate any information you could give me. Thank you. Phyllis Robertson Dickeson

Phyllis,

I am sending your query/request on to Charlotte Lucas, our Assistant Historian. She has a lot of background information regarding your family, and has researched them closely, since Lorinda Jane's grandparents are Jacob Wolfenbarger and Nancy Sloan.

I'm sure she will be able to help you. I have also called her this a.m. to let her know to get a hold of me about this. It may take a few days to get back to you, but we will for sure. We have been asking folks to share pictures of family members. We will include a query in our newsletter, to ask if anyone has any pictures.

Yes, I can send you a Gedcom of the information I do have, but, if you got the information about us off of rootsweb, then you may have most of it. I assume that Havey [sp?] was a 2nd spouse? if we're talking about the same Lorinda Jane born 3 Feb 1832, Lee Co., VA. We show a Daniel Boone Bales as spouse. Best of everything,
Myrna

"We're continually trying to contact new organizations that don't have Scouting or who would like to have Scouting as one of their activities and help them get started," Ferrell said.

The Shenandoah Area Council employs 10 people, including Ferrell.

Despite the vast amount of services they provide, Wolfersberger said the regional and national council levels of scouting do not get much attention.

"When I was in scouting, a lot of people weren't very aware that there was some greater organization besides our troop," he said.

Many of the highly visible roles for adults in Scouting are voluntary, such as scout leaders and assistants. But for those committed to the organization and its ideals, scouting also offers many career opportunities.

Wolfersberger, who now maintains the museum of scouting memorabilia in the council headquarters on Youth Development Lane in Winchester retired in 1992 after being involved with scouts almost his entire life. "I really didn't know anything about Scouting as a career until college," he said. After growing up in Boy Scouts, he interviewed for a position out of college and said, "I basically have never worked for anybody else." He has been well pleased with the choice.

"I've talked to a lot of people about it as a career, but I don't think until you go through it you can really get an idea of what you can get out of it," he said. "It's been a really fulfilling career as far as I'm concerned. I just never thought about looking for a new job."

Ferrell did not spend more than six months as a Scout, but working for summer camps during college he "got to see what Scouting could do for young boys." While their efforts have kept the Shenandoah region growing strong, local leaders have also kept an uneasy eye on issues affecting the BSA.

"Though the Shenandoah region has been sheltered from the worst pressures," Wolfersberger said, "Scouting nationally has faced growing social pressure to relax their high moral standards." Continued on page 5

Hi Myrna,

I wrote you about a week ago and I lost Charlotte's address or email. She wanted me to look up which of the Wolfenbarger's were mine. My family is:

"There's always been cases of an individual who for one reason or another didn't want to salute the flag," he said. "I'm always surprised to find somebody made it to an Eagle Scout and told me they didn't understand they had to be reverent to God. That's in the oath and motto."

However, the values that built Scouting to its current strength will continue to uphold the organization Ferrell said.

"I think Scouting is one of the few organizations that haven't changed our values and requirements," he said. "We still have the same Scout oath and motto we did in 1910. I think in the long run, we're better off staying with what we believe in."

Looking to the future, Ferrell and Wolfensberger said they want to see Scouting continue to serve a high percentage of young people in the Shenandoah Valley. "We want to maintain quality programs where individual troops are growing or where they are not," Ferrell said. "Over all, I think the council will move forward to hopefully be able to serve more young people every year."

Looking back, Wolfensberger said the key to that growth lies in the history of the organization.

"So long as we maintain the values that are traditional to Scouting, I think we're going to find people that are willing to support it," he said. "I see no alternative."

Herman von WOLFENBERG was slain in the Battle of Morgarten fighting the Swiss, while serving Duke Leopold of Austria. Dortha von WOLFENBERG was married to Walter von SCHALCHEN in 1316. Noble von HENWIL leased his home to his sons von WOLFENBERG for a rental of 2 pounds annually from 1393 through 1394. and from then on for 2 mutt and 1 malter. Hof Wolfsberg was leased from 1432 to 1438, by the Monastery Ruti to Konrad SENN. While Hans von WOLFENBERGER was in residence at Wolfsberg he served as a witness in a tithing case between Oswald KUNDIG of Wallenwil and Boszart von Hornen in the district of Bauma. It appeared that in 1439 Hof Wolfsberg was freed from the monastery Ruti, as from that time on there were no tax entries in the local tax books on that property.

[Per Dr. Rudolf Wolfensberger, of Solothurn, Switzerland in 1999, it may now be noted that one cannot find any monasteries in Switzerland, since they were outlawed after the religious conflicts continued on page 6

following the era of Reformation. (Dr. Wolfensberger, also did the research which gave us the correct spelling of our "Knight Baldebrecht de Wolfsberg".) The "DEUTSCH-SCHWEIZERISCHES GESCHLECHTERBUCH" shows predominantly Evangelical Lutheran descendants with Catholic individuals very specifically noted, and rare in quantity in this text. MBL2006]

!A few years later, the old Zurich War broke out. Therefore it is understandable that the inhabitants in that area, through the development of the rights of citizenship, attempted to guard and protect the City of Zurich. Among the admissions was Hans WOLFENSBERGER, the weaver, admitted on Wednesday after Corpus Christi Day, 22 June 1446. At about this time the traces of the individual Rapperswil von WOLFESBERG became more and more difficult to find, and in their place is seen more of the related name WOLFENSBERGER."

!The WOLFENSBERGER Coat of Arms was established before 1500. It is red with a silver wolf on three green hills. A silver wolf's head with red and silver cape was on a blue helmet.

!The following has been added by Lawrence M. Jones, after a visit with Heini and Robert WOLFENSBERGER in Bauma, Switzerland on 15-16 March 1994.

"!The castle was on a fortified hill where the WOLFENSBERGER ancestors would probably go in times of attack. Heini and I went to the village of Ober Wolfsberg which is about 3 km north of Bauma. The castle probably was located on a flat top hill with steep slopes on all sides. There was nothing remaining of the castle or fortress. The flat top area was about 96 feet in a north-south direction and about 66 feet in a east-west direction. The steep slopes around the castle are now heavily wooded. To the south the slope continues until it reaches the River Toss about one km away. The earth was relatively free of rock, therefore the top could have been easily flattened.

WORLD WAR II PRISONERS OF WAR, 1941 - 1946

I am currently researching the members of our family that fought in the Civil War on both sides. In the course of my research on Ancestry I found that several of our relatives were prisoners during World War Two. Three were buried overseas and one missing in action. - Charlotte

WELCOME ALL!!!!

It's Membership Renewal Time Again!

by Al Creasy, 500 Beau Valley Lane, Tryon, NC 28782

My examination of the WFA membership roster shows there are 41 members whose membership expired at the end of 2005. Please examine the label on this issue of the Wolfensberger newsletter. If it says Paid thru 2005 your membership expired last year. This is the last WFA newsletter you will receive. We certainly don't want to lose you as a member but we have no other choice. So please complete the renewal form and send it along with your check (and your ballot) so you will continue to receive the WFA newsletter.

You need to pay for 2006 and 2007 (total $18.00) to continue to receive the newsletter all next year. For our members who have children and grandchildren who have most everything, treat them to an introduction to their family tree by enrolling them as a new member in the Wolfensberger Family Association for the year 2007. The best way to preserve our heritage is to pass it on to our children and grandchildren. And the best way to do that is by introducing them to the family through the WFA newsletter.

It was probably from the River Toss that attacks on the castle took place. About .4 km to the north of the castle location there is another small hill. It is suspected that this small hill is where the Wolfsberg communication point was located. Heini has three maps on a wall of his home. These maps were dated in the 12th and 13th century and they showed Wolfesberg as being a communication point. There were several other communication points in Switzerland all being 15 to 50 km apart. The village of Ober Wolfesberg now consists of three or four farm homes with their barns." LM Jones

The referenced publications by Dr. jur Bernhard Hoerner were funded by Jakob WOLFENSBERGER the father of Heini and Robert WOLFENSBERGER of Bauma, Switzerland. Research was done primarily by "Paul Wolfensberger of Zuerich, as the major compiler, with notable assistance from: Joseph Stocker, (a theology student who researched the Catholic Wolfisperg branch in Aargau and Lucerne; Franciscan Father Paul Wolfensperger, an Alsatian, who researched the Alsatian line, and Friedrich Wolfensberger, (1892-1959), father of Wolf Wolfensberger". (The quoted information was provided by Wolf Wolfensberger, of Syracuse, New York, USA, in 1994.) Heini Wolfensberger was the CEO of Wolfensberger AG, a factory that produces castings in specialty metals. It is the largest factory in Bauma.

Credit must also be given to Robert WOLFENSBERGER as he currently is the genealogist of the family in Switzerland. Robert has placed all of the Wolfensberger family of Switzerland on four large pedigree roll charts, all from the referenced Geschlechterbuchs. The WFA has copies of these charts.

If you have any copies of documents which could be added to our archival collection, please send them to us via email or mail. We intend to bind our documentations into books, for publication to the membership for the cost of the binding and copied materials. They will be bound with the coil spring binding, allowing for additions. We expect to be collecting materials for the next few years. Binding will occur in sequences, Volume 1, etc.

Thank you, again. Comments welcome.
